

THEY ARE NOW.

Once in a lifetime you will meet a man who is a real success. He will be a man who has made a fortune, and who is now a millionaire. He will be a man who has made a fortune, and who is now a millionaire. He will be a man who has made a fortune, and who is now a millionaire.

Yesterday, a horse which had been looked over by the Fire Department and rejected, was found to be a good horse. It was found to be a good horse. It was found to be a good horse.

"It was a nice animal at that time," said the man who had been looking over the horse. "It was a nice animal at that time," said the man who had been looking over the horse.

The best judge had called him a "good horse," and his owner had been told that he was a "good horse." The best judge had called him a "good horse," and his owner had been told that he was a "good horse."

There a merchant had and surveyed the horse's legs, lifted his front feet, patted his knees, and feelingly said: "That's a good horse."

"That's a good horse," said the merchant. "That's a good horse," said the merchant. "That's a good horse," said the merchant.

"What is wrong?" queried an innocent bootblack who had made up his mind that the horse had been "kicked."

"What is wrong?" queried an innocent bootblack who had made up his mind that the horse had been "kicked." "What is wrong?" queried an innocent bootblack who had made up his mind that the horse had been "kicked."

THE HARBORING HAVEN.

A few years ago a gentleman near Clapville, in Derbyshire, (England) took a young raven from its nest, and kept it in an outbuilding for some months. Its wings were then clipped, and it was allowed to go large. It soon became known for a mile around, regularly visiting every farmhouse within that distance whenever it was killed, when it was always rewarded with some bit of food.

The raven was given to a surgeon, resident in Clapville, who kept it chained by the leg for about twelve months; he then gave it its liberty, and before it wandered about near home, but not with the same success, for its legs were now day by day, throughout the winter, who threw down at it. The fracture was healed, and the raven recovered, and then again took to rambling about for a few weeks, when it disappeared altogether, and was supposed to have met with an untimely end, when about a fortnight after it had been missed, the new arrival of its return to its old residence at Clapville. Frith, distant fourteen miles, when it was allowed to remain, and where it lived for many years.

There is a story they are telling just now in London of a troopship. In the harbor, the cabin was four wash-basins, one of which was much larger than the others. There were three ladies in the cabin whose husbands were about equal in rank. The women always think they have a right to presume on the rank of their husbands when taking choice of berths, etc., and there was a great dispute as to who was entitled to the use of the big basin. It was referred to the paymaster of the ship, who could settle nothing, and eventually to the captain. He gave a decision worthy of Solomon. After first asking them if they would abide by his verdict and not give any more trouble in the matter, they readily agreed to do so, he said he thought it was only fair that the oldest lady should have the big basin. That basin was never used during the whole voyage out.

A popular notion existed in the oldest times that thunder proclaimed evil or good, according to the day of the week of which it occurred. If it occurred on Sunday, it brought about the death of leopards, men, judges and others; on Monday, the death of women; on Tuesday, it signified plenty of grain; on Wednesday, the death of barons and other blooded; on Thursday, it brought plenty of sleep and corn; on Friday, the slaughter of a great man or other horrible murders; on Saturday, pestilence and death. It was also a popular fancy that the ringing of bells in peopled cities charmed away thunder.

ONE QUILL FROM THE DEEP. One strange discovery of the recent deep dredging of Rhode Island was a worm inhabiting a quill like a goose quill. The quill was about a foot long, and soon after being taken out of the water grew so hard that they could be used for pens. They stood up in the mud at the bottom of the sea. The worm inside was a small creature, and when taken out of its strange tenement glistened and presented a rather pretty appearance, so far as color was concerned. They were taken up by thousands, and none of the scientific men ever heard of them before.

SOME COSTLY DIAMONDS. The diamond necklace which cost Marie Antoinette her head is in England, and is divided between two noble families whose ancestors bought the stones when the necklace was broken up after the revolution of '93. The Duchess of Dordilly purchased the diamonds of the necklace, and the Countess of Cambridge's jewels are estimated as worth $500,000. They include a splendid diamond crown, which together with the fact that her ladyship is not a great beauty, has given rise to the joke—"She looks like a chandelier."

EVERYTHING GOOD IN MAN LEANS ON SOMETHING HIGH. A Salvation Army has returned from a ladies' trip to the interior of the State very much disgusted. "Didn't you receive any offers to pick cotton?" asked a friend. "Yes, such as day was. A man offered me one-third of the amount I picked, and when I looked at it I saw for myself that when it was all picked I couldn't count on one-third, so I left for home."

"You was in luck that he didn't fool you," "You bet I was, Sairy. My mistake is all what saved me. I tell you, send your children to school."—Galesburg News.

BLOWING THE HORN. The Athens (Ga.) Banner reports that many years ago Athens had a law forbidding the sale of liquor in quantities less than a quart. Whenever a man came along and bought a quart he could not, of course, drink it all, so the barkeeper would go the other way, and blow a blast on a cow horn, and the lawless all around town would listen to help the purchaser dispose of his quart. When, by any chance, a gallon was purchased, the barkeeper would blow a rain's horn, and then the boys would say to each other, "No use to hurry so, he's got a gallon."

Celery And Its Uses

Are now Matters of General Interest. AND ARE ATTRACTING MUCH INTEREST. BOTH FROM SCIENTIFIC AND MEDICAL MEN.

THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE WILL BE READ WITH Great Interest, Especially by Sufferers From HEADACHE, NEURALGIA, NERVOUSNESS, RHEUMATISM, AND INDIGESTION.

Celery has only come into public notice within the last few years as a nervine, but scientific experiments and experience have proved beyond a doubt that it controls Nervous Irritation and periodic Nervous and Sick Headaches to a marked degree.

But a combination of the EXTRACT OF CELERY AND CHAMOMILE, which has been recently introduced to the profession and the public by myself, has produced such marvellous results in curing nervousness and headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, and sleeplessness, that it has excited public attention and newspaper comments, and therefore, I give the following information to the public to avoid answering hundreds of letters of inquiry about them.

My Celery and Chamomile Pills for the cure of headaches and nervousness, are prepared under my supervision, and are intended expressly to our headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, sleeplessness, and sleeplessness, that it has excited public attention and newspaper comments, and therefore, I give the following information to the public to avoid answering hundreds of letters of inquiry about them.

These pills are also valuable for school children who suffer from nervous headaches, caused by an overworked brain in their studies, and for all cases of hard brain workers, whose overtaxed nervous centres need repair and refreshment. Nervous trouble, weakness, and paralysis are being cured by these pills. They correct constipation, but are not purgative.

Directions on each box. Price, 50 cents, or six boxes for $2.50, postage free, to any address. No order filled unless accompanied by the money. For sale by all wholesale and retail druggists. JONAS WHITECOMB'S REMEDY For Asthma, ROSE COLD, AND HAY FEVER.

This remedy has been used in thousands of the worst cases with astonishing and uniform success, and is offered to the public with full confidence in its merits. It contains no narcotics or injurious properties whatever, and so infants may take it with perfect safety.

Extract from the "Life of Washington Irving," by his nephew Pierre M. Irving. Vol. IV., p. 227. "The Doctor prescribed, as an experiment, what had been suggested by Dr. O. W. Holmes on his late visit to Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma, a teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

"My mother had suffered eight years from the worst Asthma. The recurrence of this three months ago every year must soon wear her out. Jonas Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy arrested the terrible disease, and has kept it off for the whole season, to the great joy of the family." The Rev. J. O. ROY, Chicago Agent of the American Home Missionary Society, to the New York Herald.

(Published by the Alexandria Gazette, May, 1877) "OF THE SUFFERERS BY ASTHMA. BRONCHITIS, &c.—In the interest of such persons without any conference with those who advertise it, I earnestly urge all who suffer by these distressing maladies to use persistently Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma, Rose Cold, &c."
